La Grange Park Police Department

Public Safety Bulletin #295 - 2016.0205

Welcome to the La Grange Park Police Department Public Safety Bulletin.
Bulletin Update:

The Police Department has been involved with recent calls from individuals who have been contacted by the IRS. At this time of year the IRS scam is widespread. Don't allow yourself to be taken in by these clever thieves.....

What to Do if You Get a Call from the IRS Asking for Money

Be wary if you get a call from a person purporting to be an IRS agent asking for payment of taxes. The Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration (TIGTA) warns that we are currently experiencing the "largest ever" telephone scam involving swindlers impersonating IRS agents and extorting money out of innocent taxpayers.

How the scam works

"Callers claiming to be from the IRS tell intended victims they owe taxes and must pay using a pre-paid debit card or wire transfer. The scammers threaten those who refuse to pay with arrest, deportation or loss of a business or driver's license," TIGTA said in their news release.

Scammers will often appear to be legitimate. TIGTA reveals the fraudsters often:

- "Use common names and fake IRS badge numbers.
- "Know the last four digits of the victim's Social Security Number.
- "Make caller ID information appear as if the IRS is calling.
- "Send bogus IRS e-mails to support their scam.
- "Call a second time claiming to be the police or department of motor vehicles, and the caller ID again supports their claim."

Over 20,000 incidents of this scam have been reported to TIGTA, and victims have been defrauded of over $1 million as of March 20, 2014.

What the IRS's procedure really is

The IRS contacts taxpayers by mail alerting them that they owe taxes, and the letters explain options for paying by check or setting up an installment agreement. IRS agents do not take credit card numbers over the phone.

How to protect yourself if you get a call saying you owe taxes

TIGTA provides the following tips for how to deal with this telephone scam:

- "If you owe Federal taxes, or think you might owe taxes, hang up and call the IRS at 800-829-1040. IRS workers can help you with your payment questions.
- "If you don't owe taxes, call and report the incident to TIGTA at 800-366-4484.
- "You can also file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission at www.FTC.gov. Add 'IRS Telephone Scam' to the comments in your complaint."
- Exercise vigilance. Contact the IRS, or ask your tax professional to contact the IRS for you, instead of dealing with someone calling you out of the blue demanding money.

What to Do If Your Phone Is Stolen

The not so humble smartphone has become a significant part of our everyday lives. Whether you're a CEO, a busy parent, a social media addict, or all three, your phone is most likely the control center amongst the chaos, helping you to organize your finances, stay in touch with your family and interact with your friends.

It contains your emails, contacts, photos, financial details and more, so having it stolen can be extremely distressing. These days, it's not just the hardware itself that's valuable to criminals, the data on your phone is worth just as much as its resale price on the black market. According to Consumer Reports, 3.1 million smartphones were stolen last year alone in the US, nearly double the number stolen in 2012. So what should you do if your phone is stolen?

If you do have mobile security app

If your phone has been stolen and you have a mobile security app, the first thing you should do is try to locate, lock and possibly wipe your phone. These immediate actions give you a fighting chance of finding your smartphone before you suspend your service. With mobile security, you'll have the breathing room you need to contact the police and your carriers.

Lock your device

Mobile security features like Lock and Wipe allow you to remotely lock your device to stop thieves from accessing your personal data. You may even be able to post a custom message to the home screen that could help you get it back!

If you are positive that your device is gone for good, then you have the option to remotely wipe your smartphone to ensure that your important information doesn't fall into the wrong hands.

Locate your device

Mobile security apps like Lookout also allow you to easily locate your phone using GPS. It's as simple as logging into your account using a web browser and finding its location. Once you've located your device (and it's definitely not hiding under the couch cushions) give this information to the police. For your safety, leave it to the experts to retrieve.

Stay safe as you get your device back

Once you have more information on your device's whereabouts, rope in law enforcement and don't try to be a vigilante. The tips below for people who don't have Lookout installed will still be helpful for you, too.

Whether or not you have a mobile security appContact your provider

If your cell phone is lost or stolen and you don't have a mobile security app, the first thing to do is contact your network provider, who will be able to block your phone in order to stop anyone else from using it.

This is particularly important if you have a pay monthly contract, as you will be liable for any calls made (or expensive apps downloaded) before you report your phone stolen.

Most of the major US network providers allow you to suspend your service and request a new SIM online or by calling their customer service department.

Reporting a lost or stolen phone to Verizon

Verizon Wireless allows you to temporarily suspend your service if your device has been lost or stolen, and your line will automatically reconnect in 30 days giving you the chance to find or replace your smartphone.

Reporting a lost or stolen phone to T-Mobile

T-Mobile allows users to suspend their service online and has a program that allows you to transfer your contacts and personal information to a new device.

Reporting a lost or stolen phone to AT&T

AT&T allows users to not only suspend their service, but to block the device from using voice, text, and data on the AT&T network if another SIM is inserted.

Reporting a lost or stolen phone to Sprint

Sprint asks users to call them immediately on 888-211-4727 to suspend service if you suspect that your phone has been lost or stolen.

Notify police

If your cell phone has been stolen it's also important to notify the police, as insurance providers will usually need a crime reference number in order to process any claims.

If you use your smartphone to shop or bank, you may also need a police report to dispute any fraudulent charges made on your debit or credit card accounts using the stolen device.

Make a report at your local station, being sure to give them your device's International Mobile Equipment Identity (IMEI) number, which your network should be able to provide you with. (You can also find this on your account settings page if you do have Lookout installed.) This could help the police get your phone back to you if it were to be recovered.

Change passwords and PINs

According to a nationwide survey by Consumer Reports, 34% of Americans don't passcode protect their cell phones.

If you're one of the people that make up this statistic, then it is absolutely essential that you change any passwords or PINs that are stored on your cell phone, as well as passwords to apps that automatically log in when you launch them on your device.

Bank details, user names, passwords and PINs, when used along with the personal data readily available on your phone (your birthday and address, for example) can easily be used by thieves looking to capitalize on your misfortune.

If you use your mobile device to shop or bank (with a banking or store app, for example) then it's also a good idea to contact your financial institution and credit card company, as it may be necessary to cancel any cards stored on your smartphone.
